What is the Computer Science Peer Mentoring Scheme?

- A scheme of students helping students
- This year with a focus on help for second year students
- An instance of the wider concept of Peer-assisted learning
- Student-led activity
- Goals: Share experience, give tips, avoid pitfalls (across academic and social issues)
- Run as an opt-in scheme, i.e. voluntary, in Computer Science

Why is this useful for me?

- Build a learning community and learn from more senior peers
- Get practical tips on academic and other university-related matters (internships etc)
- Form study groups for material on current courses
- Tackle the feeling of isolation that has been creeping in over the last few years

Setup of CS Peer Mentoring

- The set-up is deliberately informal and can change based on preferences in the group
- Sign-up today after this lecture just outside JW1/JW2: scan the code on the last slide
- Group allocation today 16:00 just outside JW1/JW2
- Each group should identify a regular meeting slot
- Discuss potential activities and a preferred slot in the initial meeting today.
- Ideas for concrete activities:
  - “Try-out-kit” session: we can provide robots, oculus rift and other kit (available on loan) and you can try it out
  - “Games programming in Unity”: learn about Unity, starting from scratch
  - “(Board-) gaming session” we can bring some simple board games, let groups play through a game and reflect
